The Parly Press

HONGHONG, NOVEMBER 20TH, 1871.

In to-day's paper we publish at length the protest made by the Hon. Mr. RTERE with of late attracted much attention. locument contains little that is new, but may be hoped that the temperate and clear exposition of the case which it contains will be productive of salutary results at home, especially when combined with the declaration which the CHIEF-JUSTICE recently considered it necessary to make with regard to his tion of members of the Council which is grounds why this matter should be thoroughly investigated, and some more satisfactory arrangement than that at present existing, if possible, arrived at. It has been hitherto believed that the influence of the Crise-Council, holding au important public position, would act as some check upon the arbitrary action of the Government; but this it now seems is not the case, and we find the Government further strengthened by the Onier Justice's vote, and the public more than correspondingly weakened, as they new lose both his vote and support in measures in regard with the public and against the Government.

It may be presumed by the declaration which he made at the last meeting of the telegram from his Government had been car bers, would, nevertheless, exist as Council, that there was more in the suggest ried off during the night by Mr. Brown, for pright from the very nature of their appointtion which he threw out at the previous merly secretary to the Burlingame Mission, and iment, and of the duties which devolve on them, meeting, to the effect that it would be very the protection of a Power, whose friendship for Member of the Council is assured that he may desirable that the position and rights of China did not appear to him open to doubt. speak fully and freely on all points, and make members of the Legislative Council should be fully enquired into, than appeared on the turn to France, where he had forgotten a part of the Council, whether that censure is conveysurface. It is sinceraly to be hoped that this opportunity will not be lost. So favourable a one may not be found for many years to come, and the question is one of vital importance to the interests of the Colony generally, but more especially to its commercial interests, which, as we have already seen in connection with the cruiser question, are likely to be most seriously jeopardized by the present system. Facts incontestibly prove that it is impossible to rely upon the action of a few officials to must the public exigencies of the place. The co-operation of practical men engaged in business and interested directly in the Colony's welfare is essential, in order to evoke the necessary amount of interest in public affairs and to procure sufficient while in a state of delerium framens. It is much to be deployed that Indian matters get so little attention in England and are so little auderstood. This Wahabi organisation is a case in point. Yet it is of the greatest importance to see its present bearings. / For years a rebel colony has threatened our frontier, from time to time sending forth fanatic swarms, who have attacked our camps, burned our villages, murdered our enbjects, and involved our troops in three costy wars. Successive State! trials prove that a natwork of conspiracy has aproad itself over the provinces. They displose an organisation which systematically leaves money and men in the Delta, and forwards them by regular stages along our high reads to the trebel camp two thousand miles off. This is alarming, but it is not all. The doctor shows that while the more fanatical of the Mussalmans have thus engaged in cvert medition, the whole Mussulman community has been openly deliberating on their obligations to rebel. During the past nine months the leading newspapers in Bengal bave filled their columns with discussions us to the duty of the Mabomedans to wage war against the Queen. It is clear the Mahomedans bave held aloof from our system, and the changes in which the more flexible Hindoos bave cheerfound them more obliging, and more civil, than many desirous of tendering. In doing so, cast doubts upon the alliance between Prussia On Wednesday morning, a full hour before of those hold spirits, whom the extermination of the Pindati power coattered over India half a century ago, originated the rebel camp. With varied fortunes it has continued until now. A terrible thorn in our sides has this Sittana settlement been. The last campaign was in 1868, but we failed to reach the heart of the evil. The Projant Government confessed that the compaign came to a close without our having been able to drive out the fanatics, or to make them surrender. The disease is uhronic in many districts of India, and the consequences are beyond our present insight. We trust that the assassination of Justice Norman may be the not of an incane mon, and not of Wahabi influence.
